The Impact and Influence of Kate Greenaway on Illustrated Books

Dr Rose Roberto, PhD, FHEA

WEDNESDAY 17th April 2024

IN SEMINAR ROOM 2, HARDY BUILDING

ABSTRACT

Far more than book reviews, it is literary prizes that shape the afterlives of new titles. Regardless of who is nominated or who wins, literary awards recognise the fact that books are a culturally important part of our lives.

In 1955, the [British] Library Association named the Kate Greenaway Medal after the beloved artist Kate Greenaway (1846-1901) who produced fine art illustrations and books for children that have been praised by many art critics for her depictions of children in countryside settings. For nearly seven decades, the award signified quality illustrated books for those which were long listed for the Greenaway prize. In 2022, CILIP (formerly the Library Association) quietly removed her name. Hundreds of artists and illustrators protested this decision, and hundreds of authors, historians, librarians, parents, and teachers denounced the decision to replace her name on the prestigious award with a controversial industrialist.

How did Kate Greenway's art reach and move generations of children? How do named literary prizes influence book sales and the publishing trade? How do library associations run book awards? This talk by historian and librarian, Dr Rose Roberto, will answer these questions.

Locating Queer History with Gresham College

Queer urban life has changed dramatically in England over the last seventy years. Shifts in the economy, culture, attitudes, and technology have all played their part in this. London has often been used as the barometer for these shifts, suggesting they were experienced in similar ways across the nation.

In an exploration of the queer contours of Leeds, Manchester, Brighton and Plymouth, this lecture takes issue with this assumption and shows how and why LGBTQ scenes, communities and identities could feel very different from place to place.

This will take place on Tuesday 23rd April at 6pm.
