Year 13s – don't forget to vote

Prime Minister Rishi Sunak made a surprise announcement to call a general election on 4th July 2024. A general election is when the public votes on who they want their MP to be — this is the person who represents your local area in Parliament. Most people who stand will represent a political party, and the Conservatives have been in power for 14 years. Even though this election is happening in just a few weeks' time, there is still time for you to register to vote!

Voting means that you can have an influence over issues which affect your local community. You must have already registered and be 18 by the day of the election to vote.

If you're unsure of the process, watch this handy TikTok which outlines everything you need to know!

This is Hull: Uni Life

The deadline has now passed to choose your coach for This is Hull. If you haven't chosen one, one will be selected for you. You will soon receive an email confirming which coach you're on – please keep this safe.

We are still chasing some students for parental consent. If you don't have parental consent, you won't be able to go on the trip and work will be set for you at college – please collect a parental consent form from the CFPD office ASAP if you don't already have it.

If you're unsure, please pop and see us.

A SPOTLIGHT

ON...

Agriculture and Environment

From the food we eat to the air we breathe, careers in agriculture & environment support things that are crucial to our everyday lives.

What is agriculture and environment?

The agriculture and environment sector has never been more important than it is today. People who work in this industry deal with how we use, maintain, and protect our natural resources, including the food we eat – issues that are hot topics in the modern world. Growing concerns about the environment and plans to boost British farming have spurred politicians and the public into action, leading to a bigger focus on being environmentally friendly and buying locally produced food.

This means more and more jobs are becoming available in the agriculture and environment sector. And as the industry has become more sophisticated, so too have the roles.

What agriculture and environment jobs can I do?

There are plenty of jobs available in agriculture and environment, some of them including agricultural engineers, botanists, ecologists, environmental consultants, environmental managers, environmental scientists, farmers, farm managers, farm workers, florists, forest/woodland managers, gardeners, horticultural managers, landscape architects, meteorologists, park and countryside rangers, recycling officers, recycling operatives, tree surgeons and so many more!

Is a career in agriculture and environment for me?

If you care passionately about the environment, love working with plants or animals or just can't get enough of the great outdoors, then this is the industry for you. Many careers in agriculture and the environment involve at least some outdoor work and some people in this industry will spend most of their working day outside, whatever the weather. Hours can be long and may vary depending on the season, and for some jobs you will need to be physically fit too.

What qualifications are available?

There are lots of opportunities to develop your skills on the job. Agricultural colleges and professional bodies like the National Farmers Union and the Institute of Agricultural Management often run short courses, workshops and seminars focused on professional development. In certain jobs, such as an agriculture engineer or landscape architect, you could work towards chartered status.
